FACULTY VACANCY ANNOUNCEMENT

Performs teaching and related faculty functions in area(s) of expertise.

The Department of Health Sciences at Lehman College invites applications for a non-tenure-track position as a Lecturer to begin Spring 2013 to teach in the undergraduate and graduate programs in Health Education and Promotion. These programs aim to prepare students to become health teachers eligible for initial or professional NYS certification, to become eligible for certification as health education specialists, or to become community health professionals. The successful candidate is expected to teach and advise students, supervise student teaching and community health internships, and actively participate in Departmental and College committees. Lehman College, with over 10,000 students, is one of the senior colleges of CUNY, the nation’s largest urban public university, and is a coeducational college offering bachelor’s and master’s degrees in more than 90 programs in the liberal arts and professions. For more information, please visit our websites: www.lehman.cuny.edu and www.lehman.cuny.edu/deannss/healthsci.

This is a Full Time teaching position to teach Health Education and Health Promotion courses including supervising student teaching and community health internships. A substantial portion of the teaching is expected to be in the evening.

QUALIFICATIONS

Bachelor’s degree in area(s) of expertise, and the ability to teach successfully.

Preferred:
Master’s or doctoral degree, research and publications in health education and promotion or a related degree. Experience in school health desirable.

COMPENSATION

CUNY offers faculty a competitive compensation and benefits package covering health insurance, pension and retirement benefits, paid parental leave, and savings programs. We also provide mentoring and support for research, scholarship, and publication as part of our commitment to ongoing faculty professional development.
